

First Go4Life Family Walk for Grandparents Day

By HEATHER BURNS
News Correspondent

WILMINGTON — On Sunday, Sept. 9, the Wilmington Department of Elderly Services is holding their first Go4Life Family Walk in celebration of Grandparents Day.

Go4Life is an exercise and physical activity campaign from the National Institute on Aging at the National Institutes of Health. Go4Life promotes the need for physical activity and exercise for everyone, including older adults. This program is designed to help fit exercise into your daily life, regardless of your health or physical abilities. While being active obviously offers many benefits, being inactive causes far too many risks.

"If we want to become a healthier and fit nation, we need to increase the number of Americans who are healthy at every stage of life," said U.S. Surgeon General, Regina Benjamin, M.D., M.B.A. "Go4Life provides older adults with the tools and resources to get moving and keep moving."

"The Department of Elderly Services is so excited to have this wonderful inter-generational family fun event at Yentile Farm Park," said the Director of Elderly Services, Teri Marciello. "The Buzzell Senior Center in Wilmington has a walking group, led by Laura Pickett, that meets on Tuesday and Thursday mornings at the Yentile Farm Park, and what better place to have this event than at this perfect park right in our own backyard!"

The day of the event will include a mile walk on the paved walking route at Yentile Farm Park, Face Painting at the Pavillion, and Zumba, by Kelli and Yoga, by Joan on the Green. There will also be healthy snacks, raffles and giveaways.

Board of Health tables vote on sale of tobacco products from convenience stores to Aug. 21

By LIZZY HILL
News Correspondent

WILMINGTON — On Tuesday night, the Wilmington Board of Health held the public hearing for the proposed amendment of regulations to prohibit the sale of smoking and tobacco products from convenience stores in town. After listening to the presenters and written comments and asking follow-up questions, the board decided to table their vote on the regulation to their next meeting so that they could have enough time to digest the information.

The first presenters were two lobbyists on behalf of retailers, said Health Department Director Shelly Newhouse, who argued that this regulation would be prohibiting them from having profitable business.

"[They said that] retailers are trained in proper age verification guidelines... that they can be the gatekeepers for minors."

A comparison was made between the tobacco industry and alcohol industry, but they did not comment on the effects of these tobacco products.

Program Coordinator at Bay State Community Services, Mary Cole, MPH, CHES then explained for the board that the intent of the regulation is to limit youth exposure to tobacco. She reminded the board that one of its purposes is to promote and protect the public health, and this would be one way of doing exactly that.

While she was questioned about data regarding the increase of nicotine overdose, Cole said that she'd have to seek it out but assured the board that there had surely been a spike. She included in her information for review a survey that found that only six percent of these tobacco products are bought online and a campaign from the Department of Public Health designed to educate parents of middle and high school students about the

Wilmington remains may come home from N. Korea

WILMINGTON — 66 years after Ronald Dow Eaton was reported killed in action while serving in the Korean War, his family hopes he is among the remains of U.S. service members returning from North Korea.

Ranked an ensign in the Navy, 22-year-old Eaton was reportedly "forced to bail out" over North Korean territory as a result of the engine in his F4U-4 losing oil pressure.

Eaton was later rescued

by the Air Force, only to be shot down.

Since the family was informed of his death in a telegram on June 25, 1952, Eaton's body has not been recovered.

The return of a reported 55 cases holding service members' remains comes after an agreement made between President Donald Trump and North Korean leader Kim Jong Un at the Singapore summit on June 12.

(Eds. note: an interview with Eaton's sister is scheduled for next week and may appear in next week's edition)

It's Your Money

THE "NEW" ALTERNATIVE MINIMUM TAX — PART II —

The AMT is an alternative tax system established in 1969 as a separately calculated tax running parallel to the regular income tax. The general rationale was to ensure that all taxpayers who had the means to pay tax would in fact do so, even after taking into account tax deductions that might have otherwise eliminated their tax liability. The AMT calculation starts with taxable income as calculated for regular income tax purposes as its base and then adds back numerous "preference" items, adjustments and alternative timing items to arrive at AMTI.

The exemption amount, unless phased out at higher AMTI levels, is then subtracted and this adjusted amount is then taxed at 28% (26% if AMTI for 2017 is less than $187,500). If AMT tax is greater than regular income tax the AMT tax amount is payable. In short, the more tax deductions, credits, or exemptions a taxpayer has, the more likely they are to be in AMT.

Prior to 2018, the impact of the AMT was most significant in the case of middle- to high-income taxpayers ($200,000 to $500,000) living in states where there was a high income tax and high property tax. This impact occurred because state and local property taxes were deductible for regular income tax purposes but not for AMT tax purposes. With the now restructured SALT deduction limited to $10,000 per taxpayer and the increased exemption amount/phase out threshold it is likely that this taxpayer class will not be susceptible to AMT taxation absent unusual circumstances.

History:

Wilmington has many remnants of the Middlesex Canal

By LARZ F. NEILSON

The greatest engineering feat in the earliest days of the United States ran right through Wilmington. The Middlesex Canal created a financial boom in Massachusetts and southern New Hampshire. It also served as a model for the Erie Canal in New York, which opened up a great westward expansion in the early 1800s.

Prior to the construction of the canal, transportation in the new nation was quite poor. Towns were connected by primitive roads, but mud holes and ledge outcroppings made travel difficult. Freight would be carried on wagons, but slowly and carefully.

In the early 1790s, several men in Boston, having seen canals in England, organized a firm to build a canal to the Merrimack River. Its charter was signed by Gov. John Hancock.

The Middlesex Canal initially ran to Medford from the Concord River in North Billerica. Construction of the canal started in North Billerica, where water from the Concord River was used to fill the canal. That water would flow through the canal, throughout its length.

Construction proceeded southerly through Billerica, Wilmington, Woburn and Medford. The initial southern terminus was at the Mystic River. Later construction took it through Charlestown and into Boston. Canal Street in Boston was once part of the canal.

It eventually reached the waterfront near Haymarket Square.

It opened in 1803 and shut down in 1851. The canal was put out of business by the Boston & Lowell Railroad, which could operate year-round, unlike the canal. The railroad opened in 1835 and quickly captured most of the canal's business.

The canal was best-known for carrying cotton to the mills on the Merrimack and finished cloth back to Boston for shipping. Indeed, it was the canal that made the city of Lowell possible. However, it also carried many other goods as well as passengers.

For Wilmington farmers, it was a means of sending hops to market. Spars for sailing ships were transported from New Hampshire to Medford. Chelmsford granite was shipped to Boston. Ironically, during the construction of the railroad, the canal carried the materials for the road that would put it out of business.

Remnants of the canal remain in Wilmington. The most prominent of these is the Shawsheen aqueduct, on Shawsheen Avenue at the Billerica town line. Massive stone abutments and a stone pier once held a cradle of logs which carried the canal crossing of the Shawsheen River.

A portion of the canal may be seen alongside Shawsheen Avenue between Melody Lane and Nichols Street. Another section is near the railroad bridge of Lake Street. There is also a section of the canal alongside the railroad tracks between Lake Street and the Route 129 bridge. In that section is another aqueduct, which carried the canal over Lubbers Brook.

At the Route 129 bridge, there is a rebuilt section of the canal, though it was not constructed with any historical accuracy. Built about 45 years ago when the bridge was constructed, it is lined with stone. The original canal was lined with clay, to hold the water in the channel.

At the old Shawsheen Avenue bridge, there was a set of locks to raise or lower the canal boats. The Gillis Locks had very deep foundations on either side of the canal. After the canal closed, the last locktender, Daniel Gowling, used those foundations when he moved a portion of the Canal House to a new site, just north of the approach to the bridge. The foundations were quite deep, and considerable fill had to be added to the basement. The bridge and the railroad were not there at the time of the canal.

Adjacent to old Shawsheen Avenue, to its south, is the old Canal House which served as an overnight stopping point for people traveling on the canal. Additional remnants of the locks remain, though buried, on the property.

The course of the canal proceeded south to another aqueduct at Mill Brook, and then to Burlington Avenue. South of that point, there was a turning pond, where boats could pass one another.

South of Butters Row is a long section of the canal leading to the Maple Meadow aqueduct. This field-stone structure, much less imposing than the one at the Shawsheen, was rebuilt in the 1930s as a WPA project. (Works Progress Administration)

That aqueduct may also be seen from the Town Park, though other traces of the canal have been destroyed. There were marks worn into a ledge by tow ropes where the canal had an "ox bow" turn. The canal boats were drawn by horses on footpaths on either side of the canal.

The entire length of the canal is listed in the National Historic Register.

The Middlesex Canal Association has a museum in North Billerica in the old Faulkner Mill. It is open weekends from noon to 4 p.m.

Bill protecting animal welfare and safety adopted

BOSTON — Legislation intended to enhance humane treatment of animals, and punish those who engage in animal cruelty, has received final legislative support following approval by the House and Senate on Senate Bill 2646, Protecting Animal Welfare and Safety.

The legislation furthers anti-abuse measures first secured in the 2014 Protecting Animal Welfare and Safety bill. Senate Minority Leader Bruce Tarr (R-Gloucester) led lawmakers to adopt the bill, also known as the PAWS Act, following the discovery of extreme abuse and cruelty in the case of a dog that was stabbed, burned, cut and had bones broken. The "Puppy Doe" case led to the arrest and conviction of Radoslaw Czerkawski who was recently convicted of 12 counts of animal cruelty and sentenced to 8 to 10 years in prison.

"PAWS II builds on the foundations of our original law and ensures that abuse is reported and enforced, and that our animal control laws reflect the seriousness of animal abuse," said Sen. Tarr. "Puppy Doe inspired me and many others to take strong legislative action to increase protections for animals and prevent animal cruelty and neglect. Animals deserve humane treatment and protections from those who would abuse them."

"This long-overdue legislation is one of the most important steps Massachusetts has taken in years to systematically protect pets and wild animals against abuse, cruelty, and mistreatment," said Senate President Karen E. Spilka (D-Ashland). "As a longtime advocate for the rights of animals and those who own them responsibly, I'm proud and relieved to see this language written into law."

"Our commitment towards ending the cruel and inhumane treatment of innocent animals is steadfast, and today we have taken significant action to protect their safety and welfare," said Senate Rules Committee Chairman Mark Montigny (D-New Bedford), a longtime champion of animal welfare legislation. "There is zero tolerance for such despicable brutality and today's action by the Senate sends a clear message."

"This legislation furthers the Commonwealth's commitment to protecting the health, safety and well-being of animals," said State Senator Adam G. Hinds (D-Pittsfield). "Acts of animal cruelty will not be tolerated and those who commit these terrible actions should be on notice that such abuse is punishable by law."

Tarr said that in addition to lessening animal cruelty there could be a corresponding reduction of crimes against people citing a Massachusetts study which found that a person who has committed animal abuse is five times more likely to commit violence against people.

Key provisions of the animal welfare bill, Senate Bill 2646, an act to Protect Animal Welfare and Safety in Cities and Towns, include those which:

- Expand potential for abuse reports — Permits animal abuse be reported by Department of Children and Families, the Department of Elder Affairs, and Disabled Persons Protection Commission. Adds animal control officers as mandatory reporters of child abuse, elder abuse, and abuse against disabled persons

- Ensure efficient enforcement of animal control laws — Increases fines for violations of dog control laws up to $500 for a fourth offence.

- Double the hit and run penalty for an accident involving dogs & cats — From $50 to $100 for a first offence — $500 for subsequent offences and the cost of medical expenses, and or imprisonment in a house of correction for not more than 6 months

- Prohibit the drowning of animals — Declares that drowning of animals is a violation of law for non-licensed trappers or those registered with Fish and Wildlife

- Prohibit engaging in sexual contact with an animal

- Remove automatic killing of animals involved in animal fighting — Removes a requirement to automatically kill animals involved in animal fighting. This bill creates other options for these animal victims

- Add animal crimes to the list of offenses that serve as the basis for a request for a dangerousness hearing

- Examine options to prohibit discrimination against specific dog breeds — Requires insurance companies to collect and report data of dog related incidents

- Require abandoned animal checks in vacant properties — Property owners and landlords must check property for abandoned animals within three days following a foreclosure or termination of tenancy

Senators gave initial approval of the bill unanimously in March. The House and Senate have enacted the bill which now moves to Governor Baker for his signature.

Letters to the editor

O'Connell a tireless worker, committed to residents

Dear editor,
It is with great enthusiasm that I write this letter in support of Judy O'Connell for our next State Representative. Over the years, I have had the good fortune to work with Judy on a number of important issues in our community.

As her colleague on the Board of Selectmen, I was continuously impressed with her level of commitment and compassion for all residents. As a fellow educator, I greatly appreciate her commitment to advocating for our children's education, specifically our Special Education population.

I am grateful for her continued support of Wilmington's substance-abuse coordinator position to help individuals and families who are battling addiction. I was very impressed with Judy's attention to detail as the Chairman of the beautiful Yentile Farm Recreational Facility. Judy worked tirelessly to make sure that the park could be enjoyed by not only our children but also people of all ages.

Judy has a proven and impressive record of public service. She is a terrific listener and a tireless worker, who is committed to helping the residents in our district.

I urge all of you to cast your vote for Judy O'Connell as our next State Representative.

Please remember to vote on Tuesday, Sept. 4.

Sincerely,
Greg Bendel
Wilmington Selectman

McCoy will fight for what is right as state rep

Dear editor,
I am writing you to help me inform Tewksbury voters of why I am voting for Michael V. McCoy, candidate for State Representative for Tewksbury and Wilmington on Tuesday, Sept. 4, 2018 at the State Primary election.

Tewksbury's over building of multiple apartment complexes and high rises already affects traffic on Route 38 and side roads and they are not yet at full occupancy. Tewksbury's Board of Selectmen, Planning Board members, Board of Appeals members and Tewksbury Department Heads approved varied developers' requests while our firefighters still wait for their new Fire House. Funding for the added use and upgrades of water, sewer, electric, cable, and schools as well as added strain on Police and Fire Departments is passed on to taxpayers.

Wilmington does not yet have over building as they have witnessed Tewksbury's rapid growth fully in allowing town leaders to make decisions over the town's future. They also have Mike McCoy, nephew of beloved State Representative James Miceli, his role model and mentor and whose fierce commitment to public service was to represent residents' wishes which lives on in him.

Mike McCoy is also a current and 28-year member (amazing record!) of Wilmington's Board of Selectmen who listened to and championed resident's requests to stop the town's uncontrolled building and development saving taxpayer's money and retaining their wish to remain a town.

Tewksbury residents need representation at the town and state levels. I ask you to join me and to vote for Mike McCoy for State Representative for Tewksbury and Wilmington at the State Primary election on Tuesday, Sept. 4.

Mike fights for what is right!

Thank you.
Charlene Dennehey
Conservative Tewksbury resident

School budget assistance not approved to meet state law

By Paul J. Andrews
andrews@massupt.org
Mass. Ass'n. of School Superintendents
Chairman of the Board of Winchester Hospital

Well, the budget is finished after a midnight close last week but let us take a look at what this looks like for education. Yes, Governor Charles Baker came to the front of the crowd to provide funding for security and education, which really is great, but in terms of funding to bring the per-student cost of education down, it got lost somewhere between the Senate and House under the golden dome.

The problem

When the Holmes School in Malden in 1993 was packed with government officials from the state level to see Governor William Weld sign the Education Reform Act, the feelings were so positive and upbeat that joy "filled the land" as they say. All looked so good as everything seemed so financially set but Massachusetts skepticism filled the air as well, but hope predominated.

All went well until the costs that the state had signed off to fund began to fall off in the amount appropriated for local districts to receive, as state mandates escalated.

For urban areas and gateway cities, the fiscal situation became next to, if not, impossible while all districts faced falling funding for education except those districts that local officials transferred funding away from other departments to move towards the schools.

While all this was happening, problems in our communities increased in percentage to larger and larger numbers with more serious problems emerging in our school districts and communities.

School security

Places like Columbine were unknown in 1993 but school intruders and shootings began to happen too often in our schools and government buildings as gunshots were heard to change the entire landscape of our school planning, when doors were made more secure, locks installed in some classroom doors in many cities and towns and police added to many schools, as SRO's as other protective devices were installed in many schools.

Remember I said "many" as again the finances for needed staff and improvements was limited at best with many communities doing the best they could with each year passing with the thought that the funds promised in 1993 would return as legislated in the Education Reform Law but never brought back in full only in components of the decreased amounts. The education funding issue looked like it was heading to a resolution this past year.

Health and Special Education Costs

A great commission got off the ground with hearings and the presence of all parties and some overall decisions, which in summary attempted to give financial relief by reimbursements or relief in some form for the increasing costs of health care and special education costs in school districts across Massachusetts. Also, there was the hope that urban areas and gateway cities would be provided relief for the impossible challenges they were facing. The School Budget Review Commission was the expected relief that was needed.

Lights out

Despite efforts from many corners, the lights went out in the State House this past week with no action on the proposals of the commission, which was a huge loss as well as the lack of providing funds to schools, that is becoming a huge, if not impossible, task. The real trouble is that school officials have reached the point where "the elastic" is getting ready or not already broken. The education financial crisis is still with us and growing.

JUST A NOTE: Thanks for listening to this frustration but as I often say "school leaders never give up" but this situation is becoming really impossible. Feel free to e-mail me at andrews@massupt.org or feel free to follow me on twitter at @Paulandrewsmass

Kratman's knowledge, experience make him ideal candidate for state rep

Mark is a tireless worker who is dedicated to serving all of his constituents. Over the past several years I have come to know him as an honest, sincere, compassionate, and caring family man. Whatever needs to be done, Mark is first in line to help out. Many people are un-ware of the countless hours he volunteers to many worthwhile organizations and charities without fanfare. Mark's unique personal and professional knowledge and experience makes him the ideal candidate to tackle any and all problems facing our communities. Mark faces problems head on and does not quit until the job is done. Please join me at the polls in supporting Mark Kratman for State Representative on Sept. 4, 2018.

Kratman has attention to detail to be state rep

Dear editor,
Please accept this letter of support for Mark Kratman for State Representative in the Democratic Primary election on Sept. 4, 2018.

We have been residents of Tewksbury for 23 years, my husband and I have raised our family here, he volunteer coached several town sports over the years while our children went thru the school system. I currently serve on the Cable Advisory Committee, a member of the Tewksbury Finance Committee and Treasurer of the Tewksbury Lions Club. I met Mark Kratman several years ago when Tewksbury had committee openings and the Board of Selectman held the interviews at Town Hall. It was my first foray into serving the community after retiring and I recall leaving there thinking I was impressed with Mark for several reasons. He was responsive interviewing me, addressed me directly and he responded with clarity back to me. I could tell his attention to detail, issues and expectations were spot on.

Since then, we have witnessed firsthand multiple times that Mark has shown dedication to the community, talking to his constituents, getting to the heart of issues, solving problems that can be handled at various levels of government. His willingness to continuously work hard on each venture he encounters is admirable and one that will bode well with the responsibilities of State Representative. I believe his participation in community and state projects has assisted in several key projects to be implemented increasing local business.

Mark's passion and investment in serving the residents while balancing work and family has set a solid base for Mark to make higher contributions to our towns. His strong positions on senior, veteran and affordable housing show his commitment to the working families. His knowledge of the infrastructure of our towns combined with smart growth will help us build a better community future.

Wilmington and Tewksbury will be well served with Mark Kratman State Representative.

Donna and Michael Higgins

Kratman dedicated and committed to town

Dear editor,
We are writing this letter in support of Mark Kratman for State Representative in the primary election on Sept. 4, 2018. My wife Erin and I have been Tewksbury residents for over 20 years and have raised our three children here.

I currently serve as president of a Tewksbury based non-profit organization called Liam Nation Inc. We provide free athletic programs to children and young adults with physical and cognitive disabilities. Erin and I founded this organization over 10 years ago in our son Liam's name who himself was born with Down Syndrome and Autism.

Mark has been a strong supporter of our organization, attending our fundraisers and individual events. He has always been engaged with us and the families we serve. He's also always had a soft spot in his heart for our organization and for our kids.

We first met Mark Kratman during his run for Tewksbury Town Selectman back in 2015. We came to realize how dedicated and committed he was to this town.

He truly cares about speaking for and helping families and businesses here. He was also a strong supporter of my wife Erin during her run for school committee back in 2016.

Mark's tireless dedication and service to this town is very impressive and as such, we give him our utmost support in the coming primary election for State Representative.

Warm regards,
Adrian & Erin Knyff

Jesse died 50 years ago on Aug. 7 and was laid to rest on Aug. 11, 1968. It may be a coincidence, but it is a nice sign that the two share the same dates.

Charlie received the National Defense Service Medal while on active duty; he was honorably discharged from active duty on May 1, 1971 and continued his service in the Army Reserves until February of 1975.

Charlie and Patty shared many wonderful times throughout the years, they raised three beautiful children: Jen, Chris and James and adored being grandparents to Benjamin, Abigail, Olivia and Chanel.

Charlie treasured the time he spent with his kids and grandchildren; he always enjoyed when the grandkids visited "Grampa's house." Charlie also loved to spend time watching Benjamin play football. Charlie took him to his practices and never missed any of his games in Wilmington. Benjamin moved to Manchester where he was captain of the freshman team and Charlie attended all his games; he was so proud of him.

Come rock out in Rockport

By PAIGE IMPINK
News Correspondent
paige@yourtowncrier.com

Rockport is an idyllic seaside community, swelling with tourists in the summer months, sharing a view of the ocean while not compromising its charm to arcades or giant hotel chains. Rockport is an intentional visit, an end of the line destination.

The small Cape Ann town is not really on the way to anywhere, so visitors come with the plan to park and walk and explore. For those lucky enough to live nearby and visit in multiple seasons, Rockport is a place which offers not only its coast as an attraction but has interior sights which are both historical and spectacular.

Rockport derives its name from the granite industry which thrived there during the early 1800s. Giant blocks of granite were harvested from the earth and sent via rail and ocean vessel. According to the Cape Ann Museum, the fort on Georges Island in Boston was one of the first places built with Rockport granite, though the massive blocks were sent up and down the Eastern seaboard for all types of construction applications.

The quarried granite was particularly useful as paving blocks, and the quarries produced blocks to the specifications of a host of cities who used them — Washington, Philadelphia and Boston. The museum, which is in nearby Gloucester, has a short film about the role of the quarries in developing the region, and shows that fishing was not the only lucrative industry in its day.

While the conversion to concrete as a building material signaled the end of the granite era in Rockport, vestiges of the once thriving industry are still evident all over Cape Ann. Halibut Point State Park is a sparkling place to view an old quarry and see the massive tumbles of granite blocks right out to the sea.

Interpretive signs and a nice brochure provide a self-guided walking tour of the site and highlight features such as the giant steel staples known as "dead men" used to hoist the blocks up from the quarry floor. The visitor center is currently under renovation, but there are simple restroom facilities available and the park is a glorious place to wander and picnic. The ocean views are unobstructed as you watch sea kayakers, shore birds and boats out on the water.

The Essex County Greenbelt has several sites around Cape Ann which are public lands open for exploration. The abandoned quarries offer tranquil settings for walking and picnicking and are part of a larger network of hiking trails. The Gabriel and Selma Kleimola Reservation has three quarries with trails which are beautiful to see.

These hundred foot pits are filled now with rain and spring water and teem with lilies and wildlife. Maps are easily downloaded from the ECGA website, and the marked trails connect to Gloucester's storied Dogtown, an area to be covered in a future article. Those who are active in geocaching or letterboxing will find the reservation a peaceful and easy meander.

The Windhover Arts group in Rockport presents free dance performances at several quarries in Rockport and Lanesville including Little Parker, Flat Ledge, Canney's Pit and Halibut Point. The goal of the arts group is to incorporate dance with the beauty of the quarries. Music accompanies the performances and shuttle service is available to the sites.

Not to be missed is the amazing Stone Bridge. Built in 1872, the magnificent byway arches over what was once a railroad track carrying blocks from Flat Ledge quarry to Granite Pier. The blocks were then hoisted by giant steel derricks onto ships that would transport the blocks to markets on the coast.

If you stand under the bridge and clap you get a cool acoustic effect. There are walking trails all over the area which wind around the quarries, one of which is used as a source for the town's drinking water. Explore Rockport from a different vantage point and appreciate the beauty these scars in the earth have become.

National Peach Month

August is just peach-y

By HEATHER BURNS
News Correspondent

Nothing is as satisfying in the heat of midsummer like a perfectly ripe, fresh peach. August is National Peach Month, and a great way to get that fresh from the tree flavor to your table is to take the family to a Pick Your Own orchard.

Parlee Farms, located in Tyngsboro at 95 Farwell Road, has been open for Pick Your Own since 1988. Owned and run by Ellen and Mark Parlee, almost 70 percent of the 93 acre Tyngsboro Pick Your Own farm is preserved under the Massachusetts Agricultural Preservation Restriction Program, which means the land will always be used for farming, and cannot be developed. This allows them to offer a wide range of crops from mid-June to late October.

Parlee Farm offers 15 varieties of freestone peaches, all sold by the peck box (10-12 lbs) for $28. This price includes admission to the orchard for up to four people. Additional people can be added for an extra cost of $6.

Harvest runs from early August until mid September. "Looks like it's going to be a good season," said Ellen Parlee, one of the owners of Parlee Farms. "We made it through the winter OK, which we don't always do, but because of the hot summer we are having, it looks like we are running about a week ahead of normal harvest time."

Also available at Parlee during this harvest season are three varieties of nectarines and eight varieties of plums. Blueberries are available for picking now through mid-August. They also offer over 20 varieties of apples starting in late August until late October.

Not up for picking your own fruit, but you still want that tree ripened flavor? Try Parlee's Farmstand and Country Kitchen. The Farmstand offers fresh picked corn and other seasonal vegetables, farm grown flower bouquets, bakery items, honey, jams, and of course, fresh picked peaches and seasonal fruits.

Mary's Country Kitchen, also located on Parlee Farm, offers farm made bakery treats, ice cream, coffee, and frozen strawberry lemonade. There is also Annie's Animal Barn, featuring friendly goats, sheep, chickens, and bunnies to delight young and old alike.

Farmstand hours are Tuesday through Saturday, 8 a.m. - 4:30 p.m., Sunday 8 a.m. - 1 p.m., and closed Monday.

The Country Kitchen is open on the same schedule, but closes a half an hour earlier than the Farmstand.

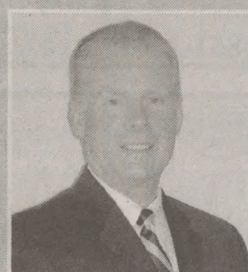

Fresh picked blueberries and peaches are usually not available at the Farmstand until after 10 a.m. Picking hours and conditions change daily, so check their website, parleefarms.com, or find them on Facebook before you head out to the orchard for picking.

So, get out Grandma's famous peach cobbler recipe, whip up some fresh cream, and enjoy the dog days of summer with fresh off the tree, delicious peaches all month long.

Rotary Club hosting Ice Bucket Challenge

WILMINGTON — August is designated "Ice Bucket Challenge Month" until a cure for A.L.S. is found. Last year's enormous success was terrific, but further monies are needed for continuing the research into curing this hideous disease. Towards that end, the Wilmington Rotary Club will be holding a Community wide Ice Bucket Challenge on Saturday, Aug. 18 at 10 a.m. The Challenge will be held, rain or shine, at Rotary Park and everyone is welcome to come and join with Rotarians for this Challenge.

A.L.S., commonly known as "Lou Gehrig's Disease," is a fatal degenerative neurological condition that causes progressive dysfunction in the nerves that control both voluntary and involuntary muscle movement.

Help us make this a success! Last year we had over 200 participants. It's a great opportunity to challenge anyone. The Rotary Club is hereby challenging all dance studios, service clubs, businesses and sports teams.

Come and join all of the Wilmington High's sports teams again this year. Challenge your "favorite" relative or neighbor? Everyone is welcome.

Perhaps you did the Challenge last year or perhaps this would be your first time. Please plan on joining either as a participant, or spectator. People of all ages will be able to join in the fun. They will have plenty of buckets, ice and water. If you have a favorite bucket, please bring it. As this is a fundraising event for A.L.S. research, they ask that you bring a donation of any amount with you on Aug. 18.

This year, they have added a "Leadoff Package" including two tickets to the Monday, Aug. 20 Red Sox/Cleveland Indians game, a $50 Gift Card to Eastern Standard, an eatery five minutes from Fenway Park and a $50 Gift Card to the Red Sox Souvenir Shop. Bids may be made by phone to "Scooter" Cunningham at 978-944-0155 or by Facebook at The Rotary Club of Wilmington and entering your bid under "Comments."

If unfortunately you're unable to join, donations in any amount can be sent to Wilmington Rotary Club, P.O. Box 503, Wilmington, MA 01887. Be assured that 100 percent of all funds raised will be donated toward A.L.S. research.

Many support tobacco regulations effects of vaping.

After Cole finished, D.J. Wilson offered a list of cities and towns with similar e-cigarette bans in Massachusetts that he and Newhouse considered in making their updates to the proposed regulation. This way, Newhouse said, the regulation would be consistent with other towns in Massachusetts in vocabulary and definitions.

He mentioned that this regulation would incorporate the five-year-old regulation from the Attorney General while also bringing business to the tobacco retailer in town once convenience stores could no longer sell these products.

For this specific regulation, he says that there are 19 towns that have approved but only three towns actually enforcing the rule. He shared an anecdote from the City of Malden's failed attempt to use a city ordinance to keep minors from using these products, which was quickly stopped when it created an obstacle between youth and the police.

While he believes that the FDA will create a health warning on these products, he's not confident that it will make an impact, and that's because of the current condition of health warnings on cigarettes in Massachusetts.

Wilmington resident Keith Hirst also saw the necessity of a town regulation where the FDA falls short.

"The FDA refuses to oversee manufacturing," the registered respiratory therapist told the board.

He included that traditional cigarettes have lower concentrations of nicotine than the average flavored tobacco product, which has no regulation whatsoever. His presentation contained a study of 147 e-liquids that determined that 97.9 percent of the bottles had a health warning, with only 26 percent mentioning that the product contained nicotine and zero percent stating that nicotine was addictive.

Finally, Wilmington's Director of Nursing Services, Doreen Crowe, spoke on behalf of the Superintendent of Schools in full support of the regulation. She brought up a statement of the FDA that said that these tobacco products lead to long-term addiction.

There's also concern for the harm that the chemicals in the e-liquids and those produced by the vapor can make on a developing brain. Crowe shared that e-cigarettes are the most common tobacco product among youth and that their use makes young people 64 percent more likely to start smoking.

Board of Health member Elizabeth Sabounjian read the written comment from Wilmington Police Department's Samantha Reed, which mentioned a survey done in 2017 at WHS that found that 28.4 percent of students had used a tobacco product within the last 30 days. The statement comprised Reed's full support of the restriction.

Newhouse finished with the letter from the Attorney General, reading how important it is to reduce tobacco and nicotine use in minors.

With two weeks to review the information they have received and any extra correspondence from the presenters via email, the board will make their vote on the regulation at their next meeting, on Tuesday, Aug. 21.

Curley, Kourkoutas, others, compete in HNIB Tournament

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

sports@yourtowncrier.com
Throughout the summer some of the best boys and girls high school hockey players in New England and throughout country have been competing in Hockey Night in Boston Tournaments, showcasing some of the best young talent in the country with college scouts and coaches looking on.

Hockey Night in Boston and their summer youth hockey tournaments are now in their 44th year and are considered by many college recruiters as one of the most important scouting criterion for evaluating top underclassmen in the USA. Over 250 HNIB graduates are now college stars and over 50 former HNIB players went on to wear NHL/AHL jerseys.

This past week was the final tournament in the magnificent series, the 24th Annual Girls Major Showcase, which was held at Haverhill Valley Forum from Wednesday to Saturday. Several local players were selected to play in the tournament, including three players with local ties playing for finalist Mass Public/Catholic.

Led by Tewksbury High senior forward Carolyn Curley, Austin Prep junior forward Felicia Zuccola of Wilmington and junior goalie Kaia Hollingsworth of Methuen, the goalie for the Tewksbury/Methuen co-op team, the Mass Public/Catholic squad went 4-0-0 in pool play to capture the American Division championship before finally losing a heartbreaker in the final by a score 2-1 to Eastern.

Mass Public/Catholic powered their way to the American Division title, outscoring their opponents by a 13-1 margin in the four games, including a pair of wins on Wednesday when they downed Rhode Island by a score of 4-0 in their first game of the day, and Minnesota by a score of 5-0 later in the day. Curley played a big part in the win over Minnesota with a goal and an assist.

After two more wins in pool play, Mass Public/Health moved on to the playoffs where they defeated Tri-State by a score of 5-4 in the semi-finals before their epic final against Eastern where they battled hard, but fell by a score of 2-1.

Hollingsworth, who was outstanding throughout the tournament while splitting goaltending duties, earned the Unsung Hero Award for the tournament in recognition of her great efforts.

Other players who participated in the tournament included Tewksbury High junior forward Lydia Pendleton, who played for Mid-Atlantic and Wilmington High senior forward Lia Kourkoutas, who played for the Junior

Shamrocks.

Also playing in the tournament were Kaylen Taddia of Tewksbury, a freshman forward at the Winchendon School, and Maria Fiorenza of Wilmington, a freshman defenseman at Governor's Academy, who played for Mass Preps. Fiorenza helped lead Mass Preps to the National Division championship with a 4-0-0 record in pool play.

Wilmington's Lea Kourkoutas also competed in the annual HNIB Summer Tournament.

Many Wilmington and Tewksbury runners compete in 'Run to Home Base Event', and other road races

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

sports@yourtowncrier.com

The hot and humid summer days haven't kept our local runners from hitting the streets to train and compete in several local road races in recent weeks.

In what was the most well attended race in recent weeks, many local runners took part in the Run to Home Base on Saturday, July 31. The Run to Home Base is an annual race that begins and ends at Boston's Fenway Park, with Fenway's home plate serving as the finish line. There are two different courses for runners to choose from, with both a 5K and a 9K race.

Last year's Run to Home Base raised nearly $2 million to support key programs at Home Base to help veterans and their families heal from the invisible wounds, such as post-traumatic stress (PTS) and traumatic brain injury (TBI), and welcomed thousands of Home Base supporters to Fenway Park.

Several Tewksbury residents compete in the 9K race this year with 53-year old Fil Faria leading the way among local finishers, earning a 26th place finish in a time of 36:08.

Tennis Tournament hits Wilmington

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

sports@yourtowncrier.com

The sport of tennis has made great strides in Wilmington in recent years, with both the Wilmington High Boys and Girls Tennis teams having qualified for the state tournament after long absences, with the girls team in particular having great success, coming off of two straight tournament appearances while picking up the first tournament win in school history two years ago. This is in addition to the teams playing on new courts built at the new high school prior to the 2016 season.

While the sport has certainly grown among the youth of Wilmington, it has also grown among older players, with many adult filling the local courts on weekend.

This Saturday morning,

Chamber Half Marathon/5K, September 23

Registration is open for Wilmington's 14th Annual Half Marathon & 5K Run/Walk. The event will take place on Sunday, September 23rd, at 10 Waltham Street (WCTV), starting at 10 am. The event is a perfect, affordable tune-up for fall events on a flat, fast, quiet USATF certified course, with chip timing, mile markers and water stops. Free drawstring cinch sack for first 500 pre-registrants. Awards for overall finishers, medals by age/gender, medals to half finishers, ribbons to 5K finishers Post Race fun: hot dogs, ice cream, fruit, music, Chamber member booths, raffles, giveaways and much more. For additional details, visit www.wilmingtontewksburychamber.org/race/that growth will take another step forward, as the Friends of Wilmington Tennis will host the Inaugural Wilmington Tennis Open, with the matches to be held at the Wilmington High Tennis Courts. Proceeds from the event will go to benefit the Wilmington High Tennis teams and tennis courts.

This one-day tennis tournament will have a Junior Singles draw (girls and boys up to age 18) and Ladies and Men's doubles (19 and older) and mixed doubles.

Wilmington High Girls Tennis coach Matt Hackett, who is one of the tournament directors along with WHS Boys Tennis coach Rob Mailey as well as local tennis enthusiast Kathleen Reynolds, is excited to get started in this first annual event and is looking forward to seeing it grow through the years. For Hackett and the Friends of Wilmington Tennis, this tournament has been a long time coming.

"We have been talking about doing this for a while, so it is great to be doing it this year," Hackett said. "The primary benefit is the fund raising for the teams, and the courts and equipment and things like that."

"But a big part of our mission is to grow the game of tennis in Wilmington, so we are hoping this is not just a boost for the high school, but it will help bring passion for tennis to the town."

While Hackett and Mailey have obviously been a big part of getting the tournament off the ground, Hackett says that none of it would have been possible without the efforts of Reynolds, who has worked tirelessly to not only bring the Wilmington Tennis Open to town, but has also worked to grow the game throughout the year.

"She's incredible," Hackett said. "She does so much around here for tennis and she always wants to do more. She does lessons for adults in town, and he has done tons for the (recreation) department over the years. She has a phenomenal tennis resume and enthusiasm for the game and she is also a great player. She is committed to bringing the game of tennis to town and that is what this tournament is all about."

Hackett also gave credit to Peter Kourkoutas, the father of Wilmington High senior tennis player Lia Kourkoutas, who helped make the tournament a reality.

"I have to give Peter a lot of credit. We had been talking about the tournament for a long time, but I have two kids, and I teach, and Kathleen is a lawyer and Bob is very busy as well, so it is hard to find the time to put it together," Hackett said. "But Peter came along and kind of said, you have to do this thing, and just gave us that little kick to get us going. He had a lot of enthusiasm for it. I have a lot of great parents with my team and he is one of them."

On Saturday, the hard work of Hackett, Mailey, Reynolds, Kourkoutas and the rest of the Friends of Wilmington Tennis will be on full display. While the exact start time had yet to be determined when the Town Crier went to press, the festivities should get underway at around 9:00 a.m. with a day full of great tennis to follow.

Boys and girls and men and women of all ages are invited to attend and to play. The registration fee is $20 per player. All proceeds will benefit Friends of Wilmington Tennis. Players must be able to serve and keep score. Players who are interested in playing should email friendswtennis@gmail.com for a registration form. If you have any questions, please call 978-729-3600. The event's rain date is Sunday, August 12.

A critical need remains as many regular donors delay giving to take final summer vacations and prepare for school to start. To ensure lifesaving treatments remain available for patients in the coming weeks, donations are needed now, especially type O.

How to donate blood

Simply download the American Red Cross Blood Donor App, visit RedCrossBlood.org or call 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767) to make an appointment or for more information. All blood types are needed to ensure a reliable supply for patients. A blood donor card or driver's license or two other forms of identification are required at check-in.

Individuals who are 17 years of age in most states (16 with parental consent where allowed by state law), weigh at least 110 pounds and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. High school students and other donors 18 years of age and younger also have to meet certain height and weight requirements.

Blood and platelet donors can save time at their next donation by using RapidPass® to complete their pre-donation reading and health history questionnaire online, on the day of their donation, before arriving at the blood drive. To get started, follow the instructions at RedCrossBlood.org/RapidPass or use the Blood Donor App.

Volunteers needed

Another way to support the lifesaving mission of the American Red Cross is to become a volunteer transportation specialist and deliver lifesaving blood products to local area hospitals. Volunteer transportation specialists play a very important role in ensuring an ample blood supply for patients in need by transporting blood and blood products.

For more information and to apply for a volunteer transportation specialist position, visit rdcrss.org/driver.
